The Doctoral Colloquium

During 8th International Conference on Global Business Environment

December 08, 2022

Scope

The Doctoral Colloquium is a forum for doctoral students alongside the main conference organized by International Management Institute, Bhubaneswar, India and EGADE Business School, Mexico City to meet and discuss the research proposal or initial doctoral research work with each other and experienced research mentors. It will take place on Thursday, 8th December immediately prior to the main 2022 conference. The colloquium will be held in a collaborative, open, and institutional ambience. All topics and methodological approaches within the broad fields of key management comprising, organizational behavior, strategy, finance, information technology, entrepreneurship, marketing, and consumer behavior are welcome. Doctoral students in all years of study are welcome to submit a paper summarizing their doctoral research in one of the following areas:

1. Critical review of literature, research modeling, framework of hypotheses, and development of research instrument,
2. Justification of research design and methodology, including consideration of research ethics, with appropriate links made to research questions and objectives
3. Preliminary analysis of findings and articulation of the proposed theoretical contribution of the study.

Participating research scholars are required to submit a 6-page summary of this aspect of your research (excluding abstract, appendices and references). This will allow our panel of experts to gain a detailed understanding of conceptual thinking and the structural decisions on the research proposal. Through judicious review and facilitated discussion of your work during the colloquium will provide valuable feedback on your research.

Takeaways for research scholars/ Salient Features

- Knowledge Sharing: Experienced management scholars and mentors will share their knowledge about undertaking doctoral research and pursuing a career in academia/industry. Learning from those scholars and asking them all the questions you have always wanted to ask is a great opportunity.
- Collaborate: The largest part of the colloquium is dedicated to the discussion of your papers in small mentoring groups – each supervised by an experienced senior academic mentor, many of them being global thought leaders and distinguished scholars in their field, and highly experienced supervisors. The aim is not that you shall give a “traditional” paper presentation, but to discuss your research with your peers in the group as well as your Mentor and seek advice and guidance on the key issues and challenges.
- Network: This is your opportunity to discuss with and showcase your research to an international network of academicians. This is an excellent platform to attain recognition of your research and engage with highly intellectual community.
